

WHY WE'RE HAPPY LINDSEY KENNA CAME BACK

After three years as an LGA educator, Lindsey left for the wild west of real estate sales. She was good at it, of course, but her desire to build a better world through environmental education runs deep. When the education manager position for the LGA opened in 2023, Lindsey returned, brimming with ideas and enthusiasm. We're so glad she did.

Read why her coworkers are happy she's part of the LGA team.

LINDSEY KENNA

Education for Action Manager

Years with the LGA: Three years (2017–2020) as Environmental Educator, seven months as Education for Action Manager, starting in 2023.

Favorite spot on the Lake: Taking the Floating Classroom up north for trips — especially Anthony's Nose and Rogers Rock.

She can help you with: Booking education programs, both on the Floating Classroom and off, and connecting you with Community Science volunteer opportunities.

Lots of Laughs, Lots of Success

What can't Lindsey do? Educator, manager, program creator ... you name it, she can do it. Not only is Lindsey taking all of our education programs to the next level, but she makes us all have fun while doing it. Having Lindsey as your coworker means a lot of laughs and a lot of successes. I can't wait to see where she takes the LGA in the coming years!

— Monika LaPlante
Managing Program Director

Lindsey built the LGA's Outdoor Classroom with her dad and a few friends.

Lindsey brings us the perfect combination of talent and temperament, managing so many LGA education programs with great skill, attention-to-detail, enthusiasm, and, best of all, a wonderful good-natured humor that positively affects everyone involved with the LGA—co-workers, volunteers, Floating Classroom crew, students, and community members.

Contagious Good Humor

— Dede Potter
Director of Finance & Administration

Pathway to the Future

With determined energy, Lindsey is consistently improving the learning experience on the Floating Classroom to build new generations of Lake Protectors. I'm grateful this pivotal role for the future of Lake George is in her hands.

— Nancy Hawley
Director of Marketing & Communications

I'm so glad Lindsey came back. She brings a ton of energy and enthusiasm, and she's built on her past experience here to quickly propel the education program forward. I am very excited for the debut of LGA podcasts, which will be informative and fun!

Propelling Education Forward

— Randy Rath
Lake Protections & Geospatial Systems Analyst

Lindsey and pal relax on the LGA's new podcast set.

Creative with a Capital C

Lindsey's creative approach to our education programs has a great impact on all ages of Lake Protectors around the region, informing everyone how to participate in keeping our water clean and clear. In her relatively short time back, she has instituted several updates and developed new programs to keep it fresh and exciting. I'm so glad she decided to return to the LGA!

— Dannica Campbell
Communications & Database Manager

Lindsey runs a tight ship. As the Admiral in Charge of all things education, she has charted a bold new course for the Floating Classroom. After a brief stint away, it is great to have her back at her home port at the LGA!

Admiral in Charge of Education

— Peter Menzies
Board Chair and Interim Executive Director

A Voice of Vital Outreach

It is exciting to have Lindsey as the Education Manager and improve the LGA's outreach. It is vital to reach all people and educate them on how and why to protect Lake George. Lindsey will do good things to move the LGA's programs forward.

— Chris Navitsky
Lake George Waterkeeper

Interpersonal Champ

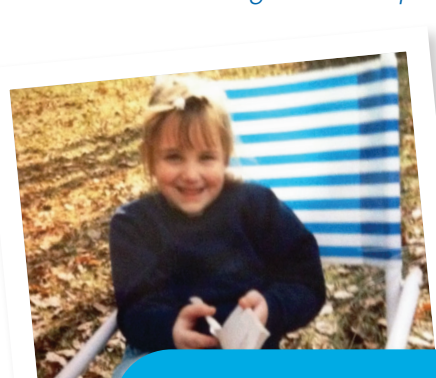

Lindsey is amazing! She is elevating education and community science programs to next levels. She engages, communicates, and collaborates extremely well with our staff, other organizations, schools, municipalities, constituents and the community. A pleasure to work with and a great asset to the LGA!

— Barbara Racioppi
Administrative & Facilities Manager

Lindsey is a breath of fresh air, doing amazing work updating and enhancing our education programs. No matter what she's working on, she does it with a smile. She is thoughtful in her processes, and a great collaborator with wonderful attention to detail. We are certainly lucky to have her as part of our team!

— Tyra MacGuffie
Director of Development

Breath of Fresh Air

She's a hardcore reader, starting at an early age.

BFF Olivia & Lindsey at last summer's Beyonce concert.

